services in the Congregational church morrow morning. The sacraments of the Lord's supper and baptism will be administered, and the admission of new members to the church. In the evening the star and congregation will unite in the ristian convention to be held in the era house.

Bishop Nindé, who is to preach at the coldest church to-morrow, is one of the most finished orators of the denomiation. He is a scholarly man, of great plit power, and it is a cause of congrat-ulation that the people of Council Bluffs to be thus given an opportunity of ing him.

The Sunday services promise to be especially attractive. At the Methodist ch Bishop Nindé and President Parks Simpson college, are to be present to join in the services. At the Baptist urch in the evening Rabbi Benson of mah is to deliver his lecture. In the ening there is also a christian convenat the opera house.

The city council met yesterday as a ard of equalization to finish the business in that line. All the matters under consideration had been decided upon be-ore, except the taxation of the banks, which subject occupied most of the time yesterday. Numerous intricate legal uestions were discussed.

When David Rice, the pressman of the vening prohibition sheet, disappeared from the city he left here a little brother, who had been making his home with him.
He has since been shifting for himself as best he could. He has been cared for by Mrs. Bradbury, of the Essex house, and has been hanging about the city jail sing choruses, etc. Yesterday Dr. Mon-gomery took the boy and will provide him with a home.

Bishop W. X. Nindé, one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, and a very able divine, will conduct the services at Broadway M. E. church next Sunday morning and evening. Bishop Nindé will be assisted in the services by Rev. E.
L. Parks, B. D., president of Simpson college, Indianapolis, Iowa. The public are cordially invited to attend the services.

A bootblack, named Charles Haney, was arrested yesterday for cutting up shines of various sorts. He is said to have been concerned with another boy in a raid on some base balls at Bishop's store. They got to quarreling over the division of the balls, and Haney knocked his chum down with his box. When the officer came up the chum struck out down the alley, making a successful home run, and the less fortunate one was put in.

The fire department were yesterday flushing out the sewers, as best they could. It is declared by those who have tried it that it is a little difficult to make water run up hill, and that such is the sort of an experiment which the city has made in regard to Baneroff street sewerage. The sewer on that street is said to be considerably lower at the south end than at the north end, while the water is expected to run northward. There is some talk of taking it up and relaying it, while others think the difficulty can be arranged in some other way.

Notice.
Bids will be received by the school board of Council Bluffs until the 5th of May, 1886, for lowering the high school building at so much per foot. The building to be lowered forty feet more or less.

any and all bids. By order School Board.

Crazed By Sisters-in-Law.
Yesterday morning a woman appeared at police headquarters, apparently quite excited, and holding a razor in her hand, which she declared she had taken away from a man who was trying to cut the throat of his wife. She had interfered and saved the life of the woman, and now wanted the man arrested. Chief Matthews and Marshal Gionella went to the house, which is located near the transfer, and brought the man up to headquarters. Investigation showed that the man was not so much to blame as the woman would have the authorities believe. He was a hard working fellow, who had by years of industry and economy succeeded in getting a home of his own, and had fitted it up comfortably and easily. He and his wife were living happily enough, except that occasionally her two sisters, who live in Omaha, would insist on paying the family a visit. Another sister was living with his wife, there being four of the sisters in all. When the family of sisters got together he had little chance to enjoy life. They took possession of the house and run it to suit themselves. He did not like the way the Omaha sisters carried themselves, and denied them too fast, and some time ago ordered them not to come near his house. Thursday night when he came home he found that the two Omaha sisters were there, and had brought in some gentlemen friends and several bottles of beer.
They were all singing and drinking, and he ordered the noise stopped and the visitors to clear out. The four sisters then turned against him, in his own house, and abused him shamefully. He is quick tempered, and when he gets mad he gets mad all through, and he became so worried at the prospect of his home being broken up, his wife estranged by the influence of her sisters, that he became for the moment beside himself. He got his razor and went down into the cellar with the determination to cut his own throat, and as all were asleep he wisely changed his mind, and in response to the call of his wife, came up stairs only to be greeted by the oldest of the sisters, who demanded the razor of him. He gave it to her, and she then decided that she would have him arrested for threatening to cut his wife's throat with it. She kept the razor as evidence against him. After some further talk, the household settled down for the night, and went to bed. Yesterday morning the elder sister came up town, and gave the information to the police.
It was evidently an attempt to put up a job on him, by which he and his wife were to be estranged, and he got out of the way, and the sisters could get possession of his little home. Such was the burden of his explanation of his household affairs. The other sisters were heard that this story was the true one, in all probability, as his reputation was such as to make it improbable that he would treat his family cruelly. Judge Aylesworth advised him to go home, and to tell the unwelcome visitors that they must keep away from his home, but if they would not do so, instead of letting his anger make him wild, he should quietly inform the police, who would see that the obnoxious woman did go. The man was somewhat calmed, but still he was ready to fly off on a very slight renewal of the provocation. The judge sympathized with a man who was bothered with so many sisters-in-law, and promised to help him out of his difficulties so long as he could control himself, and commit no such foolishness as cutting his own throat, or spilling of anybody's blood.

In the afternoon Chief Matthews went down to the house, before the man's return, to notify the Omaha sisters to leave. They consented to return to Omaha, but the wife concluded to go with them. She said her husband had caused her considerable trouble during the two years her married life, and he could have the privilege of living alone.
She left with the others, and when the man arrived home the house was deserted.

Another Avoca Chapter.
A new chapter has been added to the roubles at Avoca growing out of the attempt to pinch Arch Coffman, who has been given so much notoriety in connection with the killing of Main last summer.
It will be remembered that Coffman, being informed that he was to be arrested on some charges preferred by some of his enemies, hurriedly went into Mrs. Acton's house, and there left with her $120 which he had in his pocket, telling her to keep it until he called for it.
She claimed that he attempted to do her bodily injury of the basest sort, and she is one of the witnesses depended upon to prove that Coffman had made threats to kill Fremont Benjamin, the attorney who was formerly engaged in Coffman's defense, but who had since sued Coffman for his fees, and excited suits in Congress, after the exciting events, the details of which were given in the BEE at the time, demanded the money back from Mrs. Acton, but she refused to give it up, claiming that Coffman had given it to her to keep. On Thursday night Mr. Coffman was here, and swore out a warrant for Mrs. Acton's arrest on the charge of larceny, growing out of the retention of this money. Yesterday Deputy Marshal White went to Avoca to make the arrest, and arrangements were made for her to appear before Judge Aylesworth last evening and give bail for her future appearance.

The number of seats checked off on the chart for the meeting at the opera house Sunday night, indicates that the audience will be a large one. Those who have reserved seats will not have them held for them after 8 o'clock to-morrow evening, and if not occupied then will be given to those who are there. The exercises will be opened by a chorus of welcome by the children of the Home of the Friendless, and by prayer by Rev.
John Crofts. The church sisters will sing, and there will be addresses by B. F. Thielkstein, Rev. Mr.

Bates, Dr. Fish, Rev. W. E. Randall, of Dow City, and others. The services will commence at 7:45 o'clock. The exercises will be brief, and the whole time occupied will not exceed an hour and a half, the meeting to close then, whether the whole programme is carried out or not. One of the features of the evening will be the recitation by one of the children, Arthur Wilson, of a poem written by Rev. Mr. Crofts.

Rising to Explain.
Avoca, April 30.—To the editor of the BEE.—Dear Sir: Your correspondent is somewhat in error in regard to several statements in your issue of the 29th, concerning the undersigned. That some of the bondsmen requested to be released is true, and their request will be complied with. This is a legitimate item of news, and I do not raise the slightest objection to its issuance. But the statement that I promised to let my bondsmen name the deputy is incorrect, as is also the assertion that I agreed to retain Mr. Blake, the retiring postmaster. In the first place, Mr. Blake did not want to be retained, and in the next place the code of political ethics would not permit me to name a deputy whose political affiliations were not in accord with the party to which I belong, had I desired to do so.
Mr. Blake very kindly remained until I became familiar with the work, and it is the charge of faithlessness to a personal friend that I take this occasion to revise. I should not trouble you, as I now do, with the request for so much space in your columns.

Respectfully, A. P. CRAMER.

In connection with the above item I wish to say that I never asked Mr. Cramer to retain me. He never promised to, and I would not have stayed if he had, except a sufficient length of time to familiarize him with the routine of work.

Respectfully, J. B. BLAKE.

FROM THE COUNCIL BLUFFS DAILY GLOBE

M. A. McKee, editor of the Cambria (Eben-burg, Pa.) Freeman, has been the personal friend of the editor of the Globe for more than twenty years, and is known wherever he is known, as one of the best men living. He is also an admirer of the editor of the Globe. He has been an unfortunate in the fact that his family was ravaged by diphtheria, and greatly depressed. Mr. Clark, friend of the editor, himself sent him some of Dr. Jefferies' Diphtheria Cure, and was cured. He is now the rest of his children saved. Letters from Mr. McKee are unbounded in their expressions of gratitude for the relief and recovery avering the loss of his whole group of little and tender ones. Five of Mr. McKee's children out of eight died from diphtheria before he had an opportunity of using Dr. Jefferies' remedy.
